Speaker: Margaret Nsubuga

Pastor Margaret Nsubuga is a full-time pastor along with her husband, Pastor Joseph Nsubuga, at Ambassadors of Encouragement church in Komamboga in Uganda. Together they have five children and they have also adopted three girls.

In 2012 Margaret started the "Woven Women" ministry in Uganda. This ministry empowers women to better their lives, spreads the good news of Jesus, and provides sanitary pads and underwear. To date, over 2,500 women have benefited from this ministry in Uganda and in Rwanda; and the number continues to grow as she reaches out to more communities.

Several years ago, Margaret also started a piggery project to financially empower pastors in Uganda who are living in deep poverty. Margaret raises and breeds pigs and then gives piglets to pastors. The pastors then breed the pigs and sell piglets for money to sustain their ability to remain in ministry.

Margaret is a counselor, a motivational speaker, and a mother to many in Uganda. She has paid for the education of many children with money she has earned through her own industrious undertakings. Many of these children have now graduated from secondary school and university and are now married with children of their own.

Margaret is an inspiration to women in her country, Uganda, and beyond.
